Aaron Hamilton Chute passed away on August 19, 1968, following an extended illness. With his passing the university lost a beloved Emeritus Professor and the world lost a great teacher. He is survived by his wife, Ruth Wells Chute; a daughter, Mrs. Thomas S. Bishop of Austin; and a son, George Merrill Chute of Dallas.

Before starting his teaching career, Dr. Chute had held executive positions in machine-tool and chemical industries and in Ohio department stores. During World War II he was a member of the War Department and War Food Administration staff in Washington, D. C., and he joined the U.S. Army University staff in Biarritz, France, immediately after the end of the war. Before coming to Texas, Professor Chute had served as a member of the marketing faculty and a part-time consultant of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Minnesota. Prior to that he had served with the Bureau of Business Research at Ohio State University. After his retirement from The University of Texas in 1964, Dr. Chute taught for two years as a Visiting Professor in the College of Business at Southern Methodist University. Dr. Chute was first listed in Who's Who in America in 1948. In 1958 he was the recipient of a College of Business Administration teaching excellence award. Dr. Chute was a very fine teacher and he was prouder of the teaching excellence award than any of his other honors. He inspired a number of his students to continue in graduate work. Several of the respected marketing professors today went into college teaching because of the influence of Dr. Chute.

Aaron Chute is best remembered for his enormous field of energy and excellent sense of humor. Even in recent years his pace of activities was difficult for a much younger man to match. He was a great nature lover and an avid gardener and his wide range of interests led him into a number of hobbies.
