Jack L. Dunham, professor of educational psychology, died on March 20, 1992. He was 53.

Professor Dunham was born on August 24, 1938, in Albion, Illinois. He received a bachelor's degree from Portland State College in 1962, and a PhD from the University of Southern California in 1966.

Dr. Dunham joined the faculty of The University of Texas at Austin in 1966. He was considered a pioneer in the use of computers in education. He brought together government agencies, educational institutions, and computer companies to exchange information on the use of computers. Dr. Dunham was associate director of the computer-assisted instruction laboratory at the University.

Professor Dunham also carried out research on psychological approaches to nutritional problems in developing countries. He was a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Southwest Psychological Association.

John R. Durbin, Secretary
The General Faculty