EAST CAROLINA UNIVERSITY Department of Psychology, Greenville, NC, invites applications for a nine-month tenure-track faculty position, beginning August 13, 2018, at an Assistant Professor level. Appointment at the Associate Professor or Professor level may be considered for a candidate with a well-established record of teaching and research and current portable extramural funding.

We seek candidates with an interest in Pediatric School Psychology or Pediatric Psychology whose research involves primary prevention, behavioral health promotion, the impact of health-related conditions on children’s academic or social-behavioral outcomes, or other areas relevant to pediatric or school psychology. Primary duties include research and mentorship of doctoral students, teaching within the Health Psychology Ph.D. program (e.g., graduate seminars in Pediatric School Psychology and other basic assessment or intervention courses), and service as a core faculty member of the APA-accredited Pediatric School Psychology track of the Health Psychology Ph.D. program. Successful applicants will help support the training of psychologists who can advance knowledge and theory about pediatric school psychology and apply health psychology principles to school psychology practices using an integrated behavioral health paradigm.

Our department seeks to attract a culturally diverse faculty. We also welcome experience and expertise in conducting research with diverse populations. Successful applicants will be expected to establish an active research program and pursue extramural funding, mentor students in our graduate programs, and actively engage in graduate and undergraduate teaching. Service to the university, community and profession is expected.

Opportunities exist for clinical research collaborations within our Health Psychology program (e.g., externalized behavior disorders, school-based mental health, pain, trauma, adjustment to chronic illness) and with other departments, including those at the Brody School of Medicine (e.g., Hematology/Oncology, NICU, Pediatric Healthy Weight). We also have established practicum sites with ECU Pediatric Outpatient Clinic, ECU Family Medicine and Vidant Hospital as well as with area school-based mental health centers.

East Carolina University (ECU), a public doctoral degree granting institution, is committed to its mission “to serve as a national model for public service and regional transformation.” ECU is located in the coastal region of North Carolina in Greenville, a rapidly growing city of more than 90,000 in Pitt County (population 175,000); it serves a large rural area. Greenville is within a 1.5-hour drive of Atlantic Ocean beaches and metropolitan Raleigh. It is the third-largest member of the UNC system, with a diverse body of 29,000-plus undergraduate, graduate and medical students. The Department of Psychology has 31 full-time faculty, approximately 800 undergraduate majors, MA programs in school (MA/CAS), general and I/O psychology, and a PhD program in health psychology, with clinical health, pediatric school, and occupational health concentrations. The department also participates in an interdisciplinary BA/BS program in neuroscience. Please visit www.ecu.edu/psyc for more information about the Department of Psychology.

Applicants must hold a doctorate and be eligible for North Carolina Psychology Board licensure.

Preference will be given to those candidates who completed an APA-accredited internship and who hold a doctorate from an APA-accredited institution.

To apply, applicants must complete a candidate profile and submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, statements of research interests and teaching experience/philosophy, and contact information for three current references online at www.jobs.ecu.edu using position number 929881. Candidates should also arrange for three current letters of reference to be e-mailed (in PDF form only, from recommender) to Arianna Williams at WILLIAMSARI@ECU.EDU. Official transcript and original hardcopy reference letters are required upon employment.

Screening will begin November 9, 2017 and will continue until the position is filled.

East Carolina University is an equal opportunity and affirmative action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to their race/ethnicity, color, genetic information, national origin, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, disability, political affiliation, or veteran status.
