

Position: Research Assistant (remote)

The National Deaf Center on Postsecondary Outcomes is a technical assistance and professional development grant under the research-to-practice area of the Office of Special Education Programs, U.S. Department of Education. The center, part of the Meadows Center for Preventing Educational Risk, focuses on the advancement of postsecondary outcomes for deaf people by sharing information, networks, and strategies to improve continuing education and training. More information available at: <https://nationaldeafcenter.org/>

Research Assistants can expect to help identify evidence-based practices by summarizing findings from the literature and supporting technical assistance and dissemination activities with center staff. Research Assistants will also participate in creating resources and supporting efforts to communicate content via our website and social media channels.

You can expect to:

- Conduct literature reviews and write synthesis of findings
- Contribute to academic manuscripts
- Provide data analysis support
- Support dissemination by drafting webpages, blog posts, or social media content
- Participate in weekly team meetings
- Work independently on projects

Preferred Skills

- Experience with conducting systematic literature reviews
- Experience with statistical analyses using large secondary datasets
- Experience in research to practice dissemination
- Interest in transition-age deaf youth, deaf students with multiple disabilities, underserved deaf students, accessibility, and belonging interventions in postsecondary settings.
- Knowledge about the Deaf Community and sign language proficiency

Terms of Employment

- 12-19 hours per week, $30 per hour
- Expected to complete most hours during center operating hours 9am-4pm
- Position is fully remote
- Ability to commit to the whole semester, with the possibility of continuation

Application Instructions

Submit a cover letter summarizing your experience along with your resume or CV to help@nationaldeafcenter.org. If you have any questions, email jeffrey@nationaldeafcenter.org.